

an operation was attempted on something that is not a socket

Something went wrong with either the client or (most of the time) the server. The client thinks he's still connected and tries to write data to a (previous) connected socket.

Try to reconnect to the server or restart the application (or press the soft reset button of your pda with your stylus)